

- ITIN SUBMISSION

Why your CPA can't submit your ITIN application directly

Your tax professional knows your return inside out — but the IRS sets a specific rule for who can file your Form W-7.

● THE IRS RULE

Only two people can submit Form W-7.

The IRS requires that a W-7 application come from either the applicant themselves or an IRS-authorized Certified Acceptance Agent (CAA) — not your CPA or EA.

● WHY THE RULE

It protects the integrity of the program.

This safeguard keeps document verification strict, which helps prevent fraud and errors before an application ever reaches the IRS.

- ◆ Confirms identity documents are genuine
- ◆ Reduces avoidable filing errors
- ◆ Guards the ITIN program from fraud

- WHAT A CAA DOES

A CAA can verify your original documents.

As an IRS-authorized CAA, ITIN.com can review your original documents or certified copies where the program applies — so you don't have to mail precious originals.

- TWO SEPARATE JOBS

Your tax return and W-7 are separate jobs.

Your CPA plays a vital role preparing your tax return. The ITIN application is a separate, specialized workflow with its own IRS requirements.

● HOW WE PARTNER

We handle the W-7, your CPA keeps focus.

ITIN.com partners with CPAs and EAs — handling W-7 submission and document verification so your tax professional can focus on what they do best.
